TOYAMA
This is one of the best alpine sightseeing routes in the world, running through 3,000 m-high mountains of the Japan Northern Alps. Regular vehicles are not permitted to enter this area; you will enjoy the ride on six different types of transport. Enjoy magnificent views of nature above the clouds in an unparalleled experience that can be had only here.

Shomyo Falls
These are the tallest falls (350 m) in Japan. During the snowmelt season, the falls combine with Hannoki Falls on the right to form a V shape.

Bijodaira
See primeval forests of 200- to 300-year-old Japanese beech trees and over 1,000-year-old giant Japanese cedar trees with circumferences of over six meters at the base.

Midagahara
This is an internationally valued wetland spread out over an area of 80,000 km² at an altitude of 1,930 m. It offers beautiful views of alpine plants, seas of clouds and autumn leaves.

Daikanbo
Enjoy splendid mountain views from the observation deck located at an altitude of 2,300 m.

Kurobedaira
100 species of alpine plants grow here throughout this area. July is the best season to enjoy the views.

Lake Kurobe
There is a promenade around the lake. It’s flat so everyone can enjoy walking along it easily. We also recommend the excursion boat that sails around the lake.

Kurobe Dam
This is the tallest dam in Japan. The view of 10 tons of water per second being released is simply amazing. Beautiful rainbows appear in the spray when the water is released on fine days.

Tateyama Caldera Sabo Museum
This museum features the Tateyama caldera, another aspect of this beautiful mountain. Learn about the volcanic activity that formed the caldera and the soil erosion control projects that are battling against nature.

4 Murodo
This is the highest spot along the Tateyama Kurobe Alpine Route, located at 2,450 m. It is the main tourist spot along the route. Enjoy hiking and mountain climbing while taking in the surrounding nature.

Snow Walls
(Yuki no Otani) (Apr.-June)
Walk along the road between amazing 20 m-high snow walls.

Mikurigaike Pond
This is the largest volcanic lake on Mt. Tateyama. 3,000 m-high mountains are reflected on the lake’s blue surface, which shines with the strong mountain sunlight on sunny days.
Kurobe Gorge

There are many unique hot springs near the stations.

Toyama Bay, A Natural Fish Tank
Toyama Bay, with a depth of over 1,000 m, is referred to as a natural fish tank. Nutritious snowmelt runs down from the 3,000 m-high Tateyama Mountain Range, making the bay an ideal place for various kinds of fish to live. Also, its fishing areas are close to towns so fish are distributed fresh and can be eaten on the day of the catch.

Toyama Bay Sushi
Toyama Bay is blessed with a variety of seafood throughout the year. At sushi bars in Toyama, you can enjoy deliciously fresh first-rate sushi made from seasonal fish caught from Toyama Bay.

Yellowtail (Buri)
One of the best winter tastes from Toyama Bay. In particular, the “Himi Kan Buri” (Himi winter yellowtail), with its firm yet fatty flesh, is a famous high-grade fish.

Sliced Raw Fish in Kelp
Fish and other seafood are sandwiched between sheets of kelp and left for some time so the kelp taste is absorbed into the ingredients. White fish in particular go well with the kelp’s taste, making it a very popular product.

Yellowtail Shabushabu
This is a luxurious way of enjoying the taste of yellowtail by removing an adequate amount of fat.

Firefly Squid
Firefly squid from Toyama Bay are plump and their firm meat and rich innards are delectable. Firefly squid spoil quickly and can rarely be eaten raw, so please take the opportunity to enjoy firefly squid sashimi in Toyama.

Local Toyama Sake
There are many springs in Toyama and their quality spring water is used to produce local sake with a clean taste.

Toyama Rice
Toyama rice is known for its excellent quality due to being grown with snowmelt from the Japanese Northern Alps and fertile soil at an appropriate temperature.

Fu-fu-fu
This rice has great flavor, umami and sweetness. It doesn’t become hard and keeps its taste over time, so it’s great for rice balls and sushi.
